

MISS HELEN MCKEE IS BRIDE

OF WILLIAM D. A. STICKEL

Prominent among the late summer weddings was that of Miss Helen McKee, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Sprague McKee of South Pittsburgh street and William D. A. Stickel of Pittsburgh, son of the late Dr. and Mrs. Fred W. Stickel of Connelldale, which took place today at high noon in the Pleasant Valley Country Club. About forty-five guests, including relatives of the two families and a few intimate friends, were present. Rev. George Walker, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, officiated, the impressive ring service being used. Previous to the service Miss McKee was escorted by Mr. Harold Mitchell, brother of the bride, to the altar. The bride wore a gown of white Canton crepe, trimmed with blue ribbon, and a hat to correspond. She carried a bouquet of roses and valley lilies. Mrs. Harold Mitchell, sister of the bride, acted as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Gladys Stickel, sister of the bride, and Miss Gladys Stickel, sister of the bride. The groom wore a suit of dark blue cloth, and a white shirt with a white bow tie. The ceremony was held in the country club, which was decorated with flowers. The bride and groom were then escorted to the reception room, where a luncheon was served. The bride and groom were then escorted to the reception room, where a luncheon was served. Daily Fashion Hint

ONE ATTAINS A VERY LONG SLIM SILHOUETTE
In this coat and frock costume, which is by the way, quite the favorite child of Dame Fashion. The coat, as you see, cleverly adds another tier to the two on the skirt. Blue tulle black with braid and a collar lining of summer ermine dyed beige, make the costume.

Over 200 of the direct descendants in three were present. The old log house, over 100 years old, which sheltered the succeeding generations of the Mason family in their youth and sent forth strong men and women with brain and brawn to combat and overcome the foes of the home-coming, still stands. The home-coming was the first in fifty-seven years. The family is now widely scattered, members living in California, Minnesota, West Virginia, Ohio, New Mexico and Washington, D. A Car of Unusual Worth

When you consider price, all the features of the Rollin become out of focus.
There is no standard in the scale of ordinary motor car values for the Rollin's ample, easily controlled and silky-smooth performance, or its astonishing economy of from 25 to 30 miles per gallon of gasoline.
There is no precedent in cars of any price for the tremendous advancement of its basic sound mechanical make-up.
The combination of such features as 4-cylinder European type, high compression motor; 4-bearing balanced crankshaft, together with aluminum alloy pistons and connecting rods, freeing the motor from vibration; and a perfected system of force-feed lubrication, is without parallel.
No other car had both Balloon tires and 4-wheel brakes before the Rollin. And but one or two high priced cars had its transverse rear spring, torque tube and radius rod construction.
All these features are effective in providing a measure of ability and comfort that you never expected in a moderate priced car.
The Rollin—designed by Rollin White of Cleveland, Ohio—is the most up-to-date car on the market.

15 New Studebakers

Including an entirely new type of car—the DUPLEX-PHAETON

Today Studebaker has made Automobile History and established standards of value and quality more fully and obviously than ever before.

TODAY Studebaker proves that beautiful, distinctive, stylish body lines can be originated by American body designers without following precedent or imitating or adapting what has been done before.

Today Studebaker proves that a practical and beautiful type of car can be made to combine the pleasure and performance of the open car and the comfort and protection of the closed car—and this without excessive price or compromised quality—a car "duplex" in open-car smartness and convenience and closed-car elegance and comfort—and at a price no higher than that of an open car!

Today Studebaker proves, in its new Standard Six Duplex model, that a six-cylinder car of fine quality, great power, plenty of room and impressive appearance can be made and marketed at a price of $1145.

Today Studebaker proves in its new Special Six and its Big Six Duplex models that the ultimate in all the essential features of quality in five- and seven-passenger cars can be made and marketed at a price of $1495 and $1875 respectively.

And this is possible only because Studebaker cars are made in one of the most comprehensive industrial plants in this country, 70 per cent of which is new within the last six years.

Every modern method of manufacture and long experienced management are available for the production of Studebaker automobiles.

Today Studebaker proves that the highest grade closed car bodies—framed in selected hard woods, cushioned with the best cushion work, upholstered in fine mohair fabrics and fitted with expensive appointments—can be made and marketed on superlatively good chassis at moderate prices.

This is made possible by the new $10,000,000 Studebaker closed body plants. Studebaker designs and builds all of its closed bodies in one of the best equipped and most modern body plants in the industry.

The Three New Chassis

THE STUDEBAKER STANDARD SIX—113 in. wheelbase, 5-passenger. Engine, 3 1/2 x 5 1/2, 50 h.p.—with 5 different bodies, including Duplex-Phaeton, Duplex-Roadster, Coupe-Roadster, Coupe, Sedan, and Berline.

THE STUDEBAKER SPECIAL SIX—120 in. wheelbase, 5-passenger. Engine, 3 1/2 x 5, 65 h.p.—with 5 different bodies, including Duplex-Phaeton, Duplex-Roadster, Victoria, Sedan, and Berline.

THE STUDEBAKER BIG SIX—127 in. wheelbase, 7-passenger. Engine, 3 1/2 x 5, 75 h.p.—with 4 different bodies, including Duplex-Phaeton, Coupe, Sedan, and Berline.

The Ten New Closed Bodies

COMPLETELY NEW BODIES—each car a masterly expression of modern style, yet distinctly

Three completely new chassis!... 15 completely new bodies!

Completely new lines!... Marvelous new performance

Completely new open-closed car!

Completely new radiators, new fenders, new lamps, new seating comfort, new finish, new colors in lacquer finish, three improved engines

Real balloon tires, not low-pressure cords. Sizes—21"x 5.25" to 20"x 7.30".

New Studebaker automatic hydraulic 4-wheel brakes—optional.

New values, never before equaled—even by Studebaker!

original in beautiful lines—individual, conservative, impressively elegant, but crisp enough in its departure from imitation to be entirely distinctive.

The Five New Duplex Bodies

(A new type of car originated by Studebaker to take the place of the open car)

SO ENTIRELY NEW and so different from any other body ever made before that a new name had to be created—the DUPLEX.

The upper structure is shaped in pressed steel and covered with the finest water-proof fabric. The steel construction permits the use of another radical Studebaker creation, the new roller enclosing curtains. There is the permanent beauty and durability of the steel top plus the instant convenience of the roller curtains.

Thus Studebaker engineers have solved the open-closed car problem.

The buyer who wants the airiness and practical convenience of the open car and who also wants the comfort, protection and beauty of the closed car can now get both in one car and at the price of an open car.

One moment the new Studebaker Duplex is a beautiful open car—a touch of the hand to the overlapping roller curtains and it is a snug weather-tight closed car.

Balloon Tires

Genuine and full size balloon tires on all models. Every part that functions with the tires has been specially designed for balloon tire equipment—steering gear, steering knuckles, spindles and springs, even the fenders.

New Lacquer Finish

The Standard Six closed bodies are beautifully finished in semi-gloss, satin lacquer. The hood and lower panels are in light gray, the upper panels in darker gray. Halfline parallel striping in oriental red. Burnished nickel radiators, jet black fenders, light golden finished, natural wood wheels and big balloon tires are contrasting touches.

The Standard Duplex Models are finished in glossy jet enamel—lasting, lustrous and wear-resisting.

The Special Six and the Big Six Duplex models are in soft satin lacquer with dark blue hoods and bodies striped in light blue and ivory. Here, too, the sparkle is added with burnished nickel radiators and light, natural wood wheels in contrast with jet black fenders and big, black balloon tires.

More Power

The universally famous Studebaker engine is more than ever a peer among power plants. The crankshaft is heavier. ALL surfaces are perfectly machined to exact dimensions and balance. The bearings are larger.

The engine is in unit with the clutch and transmission. There is a force feed lubrication system with clean, strained oil always in reserve. There are many changes and improvements which result in MORE POWER, MORE QUIETNESS and SMOOTHNESS and STILL BETTER PERFORMANCE in every way.

New Brakes

Larger, more powerful, simpler and much easier operated two-wheel brakes. An entirely new emergency brake is operated from the instrument board, instantly convenient to the driver's hand where it simplifies the control and frees the floor board from the old style lever. It acts on the propeller shaft. There is uniform pressure at each wheel—equaled through the rear axle.

The regular two-wheel Studebaker brakes with their simplicity, safety and great braking power are entirely adequate.

But Studebaker 4-Wheel Hydraulic Brakes (with disc wheels) can be furnished as optional equipment on all models at extra charge if desired.

Studebaker 4-Wheel Brakes have three exclusive features not found on any other system in this country.

1. Braking pressure is furnished by hydraulic power automatically developed. A light touch to the braking pedal controls its great force like a touch to the throttle controls the power of the engine. This feature will appeal instantly to women.

2. The front wheels cannot lock.

3. There are only two adjustments required—one at each rear wheel. The front brakes are permanently adjusted at the factory. The oil in the transmission is used to generate the hydraulic power; the action of the gears and the pump keep it in circulation; it cannot congeal or freeze. Braking power is always instantly ready—in winter as well as in summer!

New Ease of Operation

New Ease of Gear Shifting—New power in braking, a touch to the pedal exerts a giant's strength at the rear wheels—New clutch action, soft as velvet—A new steering gear and steering knuckles designed for balloon tires—A new grouping on the dash, including ALL the usual instruments plus a gasoline gauge that always works accurately.

Lighting Control Switches—all on the steering wheel—Instantly handy.

Automatic Spark Control—No manual attention required, so the lever is eliminated. Automatically governed in all speeds with the precision of machinery.

And the Details

The new cars are longer and lower to the ground. The line from the radiator to the rear is nearly straight. The wheelbase of all models is increased.

The fenders are much wider and deeper crowned to cover the width of the tires. They fit more closely over the wheels. The rear fenders are long and gracefully curved into the running boards.

The radiators are high and set low in the frames and convex curved just below the filler cap. The design is strikingly original and beautifully distinctive.

Entirely new head lamps and cowl parking lamps designed by Studebaker—artistically appropriate and in perfect keeping with the originality of the body and fender design.

Jeepers, stiffer frames, more cross members; shorter, flatter springs for balloon tires. All bodies lower, all roomier, better and more comfortably cushioned. Seats are lower, backs and sides are higher.

Look Forward Into Next Year

The new Studebaker is here today! And so matter how sweeping your ideas of what a new model should be this car will satisfy you. It will thrill you with the very newness and originality of its beautiful lines!

You may not be in the market now, or even this year. But to see the new Studebaker is to look forward into next year—and the year after! SEE IT TODAY!

High School Grid Season Will Open on September 20 With West Newton Hi Here

Cookers' Coaches Anxious to See Their Big Squad in Action Under "Fire."

MT. PLEASANT IS NEXT

The Connellville High School football season will open next Saturday, one week earlier than had been previously planned. The first opponent will be West Newton. Negotiations for this date have been practically closed and a week from today the first blast of the referee's whistle will sound on Fayette field.

There are several reasons for bringing the opening of the season forward a week. The squad is large this year and in order to see what the boys can do under "fire" the coaches are desirous of giving them all an opportunity. Then too, one of the "big" games of the year will come early this season—with Jeannette. Although slated in a schedule printed in another local sporting section that Connellville will go to Jeannette, a signed contract between the schools calls for appearance of the tire-town outfit here. Jeannette always has a good team and Coach Leroy wanted his boys to have a couple of games "under their belts" before meeting the strong eleven. Mount Pleasant High School will be played on Saturday, September 27, and Jeannette comes along next—on October 4. Jeannette also has two games scheduled before meeting Connellville and the West Newton game will put the locals on an equality with their opponents in the number of games having been played.

CAPSTAN AND DIVADA TEAMS WILL CLASH ON MONDAY FOR "TILE"

Monday evening at 8:30 o'clock two crack sides of the coke region, each ready to claim the county championship for amateur teams will clash at South Connellville in their third contest of the year. The two teams that will engage in the conflict are the Capstan Independents and the Divada Independents. The former also boasts of two wins over the Young Valley outfit. The Binghamville fans will see one of the strongest line-ups of the season when the tri-town contingent makes its appearance at the grounds.

"Rube" Alexander, ace of the Capstan nine, who has hung up 27 victories against three defeats and one tie game, will be sent to the firing line for the glass blowers, while "Rock" Menefee, crack port side for the tri-town club, will work on the mound against the ace. The Divada club has been itching for a chance against the ace who has defeated it on two occasions believes it can send Alex to the showers. "Rube" defeated the club while twirling for Dunbar and Trotter. Menefee will twirl his first game against the Capstan team Monday.

The line-up that will be presented by the visiting nine is as follows: Newell, left field; Gistie, second; Miller, first; Fuller, center; Reid, Brown, third; Joseph Shallenberger, short; Edwards, catching; Menefee, pitching; with Durbin, H. B. Shallenberger, Ambrose, Frank Brown, John and Steve Schobens and Black as candidates for right field station or utility duty.

The glass blowers have chalked up 47 victories against nine defeats and one tie game while the Divada nine has won its last 11 games.

Two Games Called Off On Account of Rain

Two games scheduled in the amateur circuit to be played this afternoon were postponed on account of rain. Capstan Independents were to have played the Tikon Independents, amateur champions of Westmoreland county, while the Dickinson Run railroad team was billed to clash with the Monessen railroad nine.

The games will be played in the near future.

Phoebe Transies Boston. Pittsburgh Pirates, beginning their series in the East yesterday, was from the Boston Braves and once more put a little punch in their pennant hopes. The Buccos won when Earl Smith, in the eighth, poked out a homer, driving Grimm in ahead.

of him. The two runs gave the Pirates a one run lead and a nearly rally of the Boston club, in the ninth, which threatened to tie the score, was nipped in time to save the game.

New York lost to St. Louis yesterday, 5-1. Sheardell was on the rubber for the victors and McGraw used five pitchers in losing the game. The Cardinals won. The defeat brought Pittsburgh one game closer to the top, and now Brooklyn, idle yesterday, is within one single point of the league leaders.

The league leaders in the American circuit were idle yesterday, not being scheduled.

The Pittsburgh Pirates are now two and one-half games behind the Giants, New York and Boston. The team will be idle on Sunday.

Capstan Glass plays Monday with the strong Divada team as the attraction. After that all Connellville sport followers will concentrate locally on football. Scotland is also finishing up the diamond season and the only baseball of interest here will be in this league.

3,000 CHILDREN AT DAWSON FAIR CLOSING DAY

Attendance of Juvenile Folks Disappointment as 10,000 Were Expected.

LAST DAY CROWD 11,000

Approximately 3,000 kiddies spent Friday at the Great Dawson Fair as the guests of the Dawson Fair Association and official records at the fair grounds show that yesterday's crowd at the fair was the largest that ever gathered there. The closing day of the annual event. Close to 11,000 persons were in attendance, it was announced. The association expressed disappointment as to the number of children in attendance as officials expected close to 10,000. "Kiddie Day" closed the ninth annual fair.

An accident marred the day's racing card, in which five events were run off. William Longnecker, driving "Tolley," owned by John A. Moredock & Sharpnack of Carmichaels, and Watkins, driving "Don the 31," were killed in the third heat of the fourth event. Longnecker, with "Tolley," took a spill Thursday. No injuries were received in any of the spills.

Equalling of the track record marked the day's racing card. In the third heat of the third race "Valley Day" owned and driven by Harry Short of Columbus, Ohio, paced the mile in 2:09 1/4. With a new track record within grasp, "Valley Day" went up when about 100 yards of the finishing line. Expert horsemen claim that the Ohio streak would have finished under 2:07 if he had not broken.

The horse's progress by quarters was: 31 3/4; 1:04; 1:35 1/4; 2:09 1/4. The record for the track was made by a horse named "Harry L." some time ago.

The pony race for children was a very interesting event. William Jones of Brownsville, riding "Lad," easily topped the one-eighth mile event and took a cash prize of $7.50 for first place. Bobby Haas of Dawson won second prize, $5, riding "Nell." Annette Dull, a Connellville girl, took third prize of $2.25 with her "Wildfire." Ward Seward of Brownsville riding "Betty" came in fourth and won a $1.50 prize. Only four entries were received. The event was very interesting to all.

Extraordinary care was taken of the little folks attending the fair. No dog was allowed on the grounds and the Highway Patrol had a detail of men to direct traffic outside the fair grounds while capable men were traffic directors on the inside of the grounds.

A very interesting service was running from Vanderbilt and Dawson to the grounds. Half fare rates for children prevailed on all transporting automobiles.

With five races, the pony dash, free vaudeville acts, ferris wheel, amusements, merry-go-round, shows of all kind, music and the best saddle, stock, poultry, hog and industrial displays of high educational value, the little folks had a very busy day at the fair.

A well attended dance marked the closing of the annual fair.

The horse race elimination contest to decide the county champion horse shoe thrower was not held as the entrants failed to appear.

The results of the racing program were:

If Millionaires Escaped Death, Why Not This Poor Boy?

By United Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Public interest here is being focused on a slight 13-year-old boy with prematurely white hair, who sits in death row in the county jail under sentence to hang October 17.

The boy is Bernard Grant of Chicago, who was forced to give up school at the age of 14 to help support his family and who can't see why Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, millionaires' sons, escaped the death penalty for a confessed murder while he is sentenced to hang on what his attorney claims very flimsy evidence.

Attorney Thomas E. Swanson is preparing to go before Governor Small with a request for commutation of sentence. Swanson said he would point to the Leopold-Loeb murder case as the latest precedent of a Chicago court against hanging boys under the age of 21.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

"What's Sinner for the Goose?"

One Mother Says:

I never allow my youngest children to say or do things I would not allow in the older children, even though they do seem cute, because I know it means future trouble. A bit of impudence in a tiny tot may seem amusing when the same thing said by an older one would be shocking. To show amusement at the notions of a little child is to set on it the seal of approval which will establish a habit that may have to be overcome later by punishment.

Hearing Next Friday on Gulf Refining Bldg.

Before action on the application of the Gulf Refining Company for a permit for the erection of a gasoline station in Crawford avenue, West Side, on a lot purchased from the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the City Planning Commission will give opportunity for a public hearing on the application next Friday evening.

The application was presented by H. B. Holmes, assistant division engineer for the refining company. Mr. Holmes told the commission that it is not the intention of the company to force its way into Connelville; that it wants to come in a friendly way, devoid of any friction; that if a permit is granted the company will expend $50,000 on the site and will give employment to a dozen men; also that the spot will be made one of beauty.

At the session of Council, also held during the evening, no action was taken on the ordinance introduced Monday evening at the instance of President E. C. Higbee of the Planning Commission.

The application of the Hyatt Motor Company, presented by J. Lamon Hyatt, for a permit for a modern garage at Crawford avenue and Second street was approved.

The commission refused a permit to Robert Lehart for extensions and alterations to the Lehart frame garage at Race street and Davidson avenue over which there has been controversy. The action was taken on the grounds that the section in which the garage is located is included in the part of the South Side declared a residential zone.

Other permits granted were: J. M. Richey, apartment.

Tony Roberts, business building.

Harry Caudy, private garage.

Bryan Nabors, residence.

W. L. Whipkey, residence.

Ernest Whipkey, residence and garage.

Harry Stull, private garage.

John F. Kooser, private garage.

C. D. Plern, porch.

James A. Veech, porch.

Danny Hickey, alterations and gas station.

Applications held over were: George K. Montzer, private garage, hearing Friday evening.

Edna P. Hyatt, private garage, hearing Friday evening.

Charles Sparto was refused a permit for erection of building seven and one-half feet wide, not in keeping with other buildings in vicinity.

The commission, beginning the first of the coming month and every month thereafter, will make a complete check-up on all permits to ascertain whether applicants are carrying out their building operations in accordance with plans submitted to the board.

Connellsville Citizenry Rallies for Defense Day; Its Purpose Is Approved

love and respect in your heart for all the people of the world."

He said citizens were divided on the meaning of Defense Day and explained its purpose was not to cultivate a desire for war, but to teach every man that America expects him to do his duty so that when we have the business of warfare on hand every man shall help.

"That is really the meaning of Defense Day," he said. "The day is past when the best minds of the land shall float over the thoughts of war. We are not blood thirsty."

Speaking of the attitude of ministers of war he said:

"We believe war is a collective sin. It is the most colossal collective sin we have to meet. Our position is that if we cannot expect him to do his duty so that when we have the business of warfare on hand every man shall help."

War of aggression, he declared, was what America stood against today. "We war against war of aggression," he declared, "but prepare against war of aggression."

Dr. Francis J. Scott spoke next, following the playing of "The Stars and Stripes Forever" by the Connellsville Military Band.

"We've come because this country has called us," he said. "When he speaks you obey and I obey. It is not much of a citizen who will do things for one President and not do them for another one. Men who are careless of what they say of this country say it because they do not know the value of that liberty which was handed down to us."

"Defense Day doesn't mean war. It is a common sense business proposition. We are making an inventory of our resources. A bank would not be a safe bank if it did not take account of its resources. Through Defense Day this country stands as a whole to fight any who would break her into pieces. We haven't any use for that sort of Bolshevism who would destroy and Defense Day tells the anarchists we have counted our resources and it is dangerous to come in with dangerous talk."

"Through Defense Day we take account of the stock of the country. Then we can strengthen the brace which is weak and be prepared for any kind of righteous war that comes. This country never engaged in an unrighteous war and I hope to God she never will."

The concluding talk given by Captain T. W. Scott, commander of the Howitzer Company, who spoke on "The Meaning of National Defense Day."

"The real object of the test you have witnessed and taken part in today," said Captain Scott, "is to demonstrate to the people that they are only protected by a small standing army, and that in time of national peril the cooperation is absolutely necessary for their well being."

"It is a test of our preparedness to prevent war and our preparedness to preserve national unity. We are all a part of a great national demonstration. The outcome of our efforts today will determine if the National Defense Act of 1920 will enable America to protect itself should it be menaced by an enemy. Uncle Sam on this day will take an inventory of his assets for peace and show to his citizens the need for their cooperation in the time of war, particularly in event of an armed invasion."

Disclaiming that war and armies go hand in hand, Captain Scott drew attention to the fact that "soldiers are not the only ones who are taking part in this great demonstration today. The lessons to be learned will help us avoid a recurrence of the blunders admitted to have been made during the months of preparation for the World War and the years that conflict involved the United States."

Captain Scott declared "valuable time was lost in drafting man-power early in the war. For that reason the mobilization of reserve forces and citizen volunteers, such as we have here today, the government seeks to demonstrate to our citizens how they themselves may be the means of providing a better method." He regarded the day as a "people's holiday" and a "necessary" hence the desire for a better method should a similar emergency arise.

"Unpreparedness," Captain Scott declared, "never prevented war and the only result of our peace time disinterestness has been increased losses and hardships to those of our citizens who have rallied to the defense of the nation. Let us not deceive ourselves, for without the resources of our own people, our lack of even ordinary foresight before 1917 brought us into the greatest of all wars. While always working for the settlement of international differences with honor and by peaceful means, and always avoiding political entanglements, let us never again be a people, blindly concluding that a pacifist state of mind on our part, which involves wanton neglect, will ever seriously deter an aggressive foe."

Captain Scott summarized the results of Defense Day as: "Complete assurance of American safety; local responsibility for mobilization as an improvement over the slow and costly methods of the World War; realization by the people that the government must depend upon them in event of an emergency; industrial preparation for a speedy, efficient and economic production of all kinds of war materials; financial mobilization."

Captain Scott closed his address by quoting the lines of "Your Flag and My Flag" at the conclusion of which the massed bands, directed by John E. Carter, played "The Star Spangled Banner."

WIFE ARRESTED FOR MURDER OF LAST HEIR OLD FRENCH FAMILY

PARIS, Sept. 12.—From the little seaside town of Lannion word came to Paris today of a murder mystery in which the victim was the last heir of one of the oldest families of Brittany, Count de Kernan.

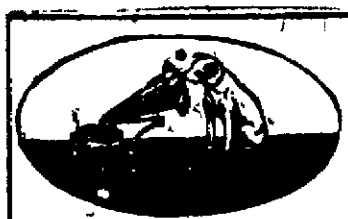

The count, who was 64, was shot

CHICHESTER'S PILLS

On August 21 but lingered until the 28th. A story was given out to the effect that he had shot himself and the incident was almost forgotten. Just before his death, however, the count called to his bedside beautiful

Bernardine Noddele, aged 32, who has been his mistress for five years, and told her that his wife, the countess, who is 59, had shot him four times. He had the mistress take an oath of silence until his death.

On the day of the funeral Bernardine went to the police. The police examined the body which showed four bullet wounds such as it would have been impossible for the count to inflict on himself. The countess was arrested today. She insists the shooting was an accident.

He stopped, as if he had caught himself babbling about something that should not have been mentioned. Then, as Joan stood aside, he leaped into the vehicle. "Good morning," he muttered, raising his hat, and drove away rapidly.

Joan remained where the buggy had been. She realized that for the present she could get no help from Jenkins. He had seemed afraid, not for himself, but for Lanchester. What had Lanchester done, then, that he should be in the power of Myers? And he had embezzled the funds of the institute? The question was an absurd one. It was unbelievable that Lanchester should be a thief; besides, the explanation would not solve the problem at all.

She went back to the veranda. She was resolved to reach the bottom of the mystery, for Lanchester's sake; to prove her loyalty although he had withdrawn his demand on her.

As she reached the front door she was startled to hear her name spoken in the matron's room. The speaker was Myers.

"She knows a good deal too much," Fraser was saying.

"But she knows nothing at all," Mrs. Myers answered. "What do you suppose the doctor thought her here for, if not to try to publish his shame to the world?"

"Ah, his shame," repeated the matron bitterly. "It is a hard work for three people to try to hold up one man without a fourth coming in."

"Well, is that his game?" demanded the secretary. "Is it or isn't it?"

"We want a nurse. You know we've tried to get one, Mr. Myers, but we won't stay here. It's hard work, and the patients sometimes, when there's a rush."

"I wish," repeated Myers scornfully, "that I could get this old place with the doctor's resignation."

"They do come, and the people trust him," said Mrs. Fraser, half crying.

"Yes," asserted the other. "And the doctor still has his grandiose ideas about building up the institution—I am about wrecked!"

"Well, that girl knows nothing, anyway."

"I tell you she means to help the doctor in his crazy plan of reform. She means to undo all our work in its own interests," cried Myers vehemently.

Joan walked away. She had overheard unthinkingly, and enough to convince her that there was a mystery. With Myers at the bottom of it, and the doctor's attitude toward him, she had the right to suspect an enemy in him, and he in her. Now her mind was resolved to remain and fight for Lanchester. It was as if her decision, sudden, crystallized, had suddenly grown crystal-clear.

But she had not passed the entrance when the matron's door swung open violently and Myers came out. He stood confronting Joan with his insulting leer.

"Miss Wentworth," he began, "when you and I had our talk this morning you hadn't seen the doctor. You didn't know how things were situated, and I don't blame you. Now you've seen that the doctor needs a guardian. Well, I'm his guardian."

"I do not think that Doctor Lanchester needs a guardian, Mr. Myers," answered Joan, feeling him steadily.

"See here, now, Miss Wentworth," said Myers, swallowing hard. "You don't get the drift of things, just as I thought. You think I'm trying to stand in the way of your work, when in reality I'm trying to keep things in running order. That's my aim. And I fight!"

"I don't know whether you are right. I think you are extremely unjust. Take off your hat!" rushed Joan.

Myers removed the hat from his head and stared at her in astonishment. He could not understand her sudden initiation of hostilities.

"Well, I reckon that's my nature, and I'm sorry," he said. "He was trying to be conciliatory now. I'm sorry if I get on your nerves, Miss Wentworth," he persisted, "but I wasn't brought up to be a ladies' man. However, I know my job, and I reckon you know yours. If you think I'm trying to stand between the doctor and you, come and see him right now."

"I have no complaint to make, and I have made none," said Joan.

"Come and see him," persisted Myers. "You're the nurse, and I guess it's up to you."

She looked at him, dismayed by his expression. "Is Doctor Lanchester worse?" she asked.

"Well, nothing that I didn't expect, but he might be better," said Myers, sneering.

He walked toward the door of Lanchester's room and opened it. Through the aperture Joan saw Lanchester stretched out in a large chair, his head bent forward on his breast, his limbs famished. She hurried into the room.

But Myers preceded her to Lanchester's side. He raised the limp arm and turned up the sleeve. Joan saw that the skin was densely speckled with tiny purple-red Lanchester was breathing heavily, and beside him, upon a little table, was a syringe, and near that a little bottle containing a few drops of a pale fluid. Joan drew in her breath quickly. It was what she had feared.

"Alcohol," said Myers. "He always does this when he comes home. Now you understand what I was trying to get at this morning, Miss Wentworth. I'm responsible for him. It's my job to keep him straight if I can. When I can't, I try. Now you see, perhaps, why he's lost his will power, and why I have to keep after him like a dog following his master. And I guess you won't think I'm trying to set him against you."

The bully in the man was coming to the surface again. He thrust out his hand toward Joan.

"Because, if you do, I may as well say, Miss Wentworth, I'm the boss here. Understand that?" he continued, with a blistering air.

"The doctor likes all sorts of people when he's like this, and it doesn't mean nothing. He can't pay out no salaries unless my O. K.'s on the vouchers. We want a nurse, and if you like to stay on you can. But if you stay you help me so far as the doctor's concerned, and you do what I tell you. That's straight. Is it clear or isn't it?"

Joan looked at him indifferently. "Help me put Doctor Lanchester on the bed," she said, "and then run and get me a hot-water bottle."

He scowled furiously, but he obeyed her. And all the while Joan sat at Lanchester's side watching him, her mind ran over the questions that were puzzling her.

Why had Myers spoken of Lanchester as coming home, when he lived in Avonmouth?

Who had hired him to be the doctor's keeper?

And with whom had Doctor Lanchester been speaking so bitterly in his consulting room that evening when Joan called at the house?

Chapter VI

She sat for hours beside the sick man, conscious sometimes that Myers had come in and spoken to her. But she never answered him. As the pulse strengthened she let her mind work upon the problem again. Lanchester had taken an immense overdose, one inconceivable in the ordinary morphine habitué. And he must have taken it during the brief period when Myers was with him; he must have taken it as soon as he got back to his room. Why had Myers permitted it?

At last Lanchester opened his eyes. His gaze fell upon Joan's face, at first without recognition, then with wonder.

"Water!" he gasped, after a few ineffectual attempts to speak.

Joan drew a glassful and gave it to him, and then another. Lanchester gulped down the liquid greedily. Presently he sat up, as on his feet, and pressed his way to the chair.

"I'm sorry," he said, looking at Joan with a whimsical expression. "I should have told you."

Doctor Lanchester I am ashamed of you," said Joan.

"God knows I'm ashamed of myself," he burst out fretfully. "Miss Wentworth, in the third drawer of that desk, beneath a pile of letters, you'll find a bottle."

"No," said Joan decisively.

She knew by the wholly unnecessary secrecy in the concealment, characteristic of the drug habitué, that Lanchester had gone a long way down the devilry.

"Miss Wentworth, you misunderstand me. It's an antidote for alkaloidal poisoning. I was experimenting with a new drug."

Joan found herself sobbing, and she was not alone. It was the wreck of the man's moral nature that was unbearable. She saw the latent finances to him, and it was as if the needless he was the value of the morphine devil that spoke through his lips.

Lanchester looked distressed. "Miss Wentworth, you had better leave me and go back to Avonmouth on the evening train," he said. "I ought never to have brought you here. It was pure foolishness on my part. Miss Wentworth, please don't try. Go away now, and we'll talk it over before you start for the station."

"If I go away," went Joan, "you'll take another hypodermic."

"I pledge you my word of honor no," said Lanchester, with almost ingenuous candor. "I am really not accustomed to such a thing; that is why it knocked me out. I have been suffering from insomnia, and I tried a new alkaloid—not morphine, you know, but a derivative—for the benefit of my patients."

The words came from his lips so glibly that Joan was almost convinced—would have been, had not the first lie been different. She hesitated. She had no intention of leaving the room, but she turned away.

Lanchester misunderstood her action. With incredible swiftness his hand shot out toward the little bottle. He had unhooked it and plunged in the syringe before she could snatch it away.

"That word of honor!" said Joan. He leaped back in his chair and looked at her with amusement.

"Miss Wentworth," he said, "you are a nurse. Surely you are aware that I am not to be trusted, that my word of honor is worthless? That I am essentially devoid of honesty and decency? Don't you know that this accused thing?"—she pointed toward the bottle—"tells men of their honor and self-respect, and lowers them beneath the beast?"

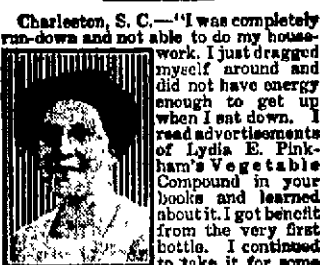

He spoke as if at a clinch, and quite impersonally; there was the shadow of a whimsical smile about his lips, which twitched, nevertheless, with pain.

Cannot Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Enough. Sick Women Read This Letter

Charleston, S. C.—"I was completely run-down and not able to do my housework. I just dragged myself around and did not have energy enough to get up when I sat down. I read advertisements of Lydia E. Uncut Felt Used in Fall Chapeau

Brim Sewed to Crown, Feature of Latest Headgear Shown in Paris.

The present trend of Paris millinery is decidedly toward felt, usually uncut and invariably untrimmed, says a Paris fashion correspondent in the New York Herald-Tribune. This classic model was designed by Reboux and has about ten variations. The distinctive feature of these hats is that the brim is sewed to the crown, overlapping the crown on the outside at about an inch and a half from the back edge. The two ends of the piece of felt, which form the brim, are drawn one over the other and cut into winglike points, which extend from both sides and are shaped in a manner most becoming to the wearer. Sometimes these points are knotted, but, however treated, they are always placed at the back or right-side back. Black felt, gray felt, beige, rust and even pink felt are used in the making of these extremely chic small hats.

Another variation is the small felt hat, shown by Rose Deodat, with crown indented in circular form similar to men's headgear, giving the square outline. The brim is narrow and rolling with the exception of the right side which shows a slight droop. The hat is very simply trimmed with black grosgrain ribbon. This model is shown in white felt for Deauville and in black and brown for wear in Paris.

The life of the straw hat in Paris is always extremely short. The earliest model this season was the small black or brown bangkok and plant, which enjoyed a rather fleeting vogue. A slightly larger bangkok, the trim being quite short at the back and of even width at the sides and front, is sponsored by Rose Deodat for dining "au Bois" and for the light, sunny days at the resorts. These hats, in bright colors such as yellow, orange, cerise and mauve, are trimmed in the simplest manner possible with inch and a quarter-wide velvet ribbon of exactly matching shade. Madame Lanvin also makes large straw hats to be worn with her bouffant dresses, principally because with such a dress no other hat is possible. These hats she trims with rosettes and typical Lanvin decorations made of beads, ribbons and braids.

In general, however, the straw hat finds small favor with the Parisienne and save to special instances and for a brief moment when the season is in its infancy. It is always a minority chapter.

Big Praise from Big Men

Lanchester Balancer Adopted by Willys-Knight is Acclaimed

Automotive engineers and mechanical experts are impressed by Willys-Knight's new refinement, the Lanchester Balancer, in eliminating vibration. Read these comments.

Glenn Curtiss

Famous Airplane Inventor

"It is surprising. I drove the car (Willys-Knight Sedan) at all speeds up to 50 miles an hour and found absolutely no vibration."

W. E. Best

Works Manager, Washington Cash Register

"The smoothness of the motor was a revelation. The driver increased the speed from 15 miles an hour to approximately 45 miles and, as far as I could detect, with no vibration. It would seem that the balancer is doing the trick and gives six-cylinder operation as far as smoothness is concerned."

Hiram P. Maxim

President, Maxim Motor Company

"The Lanchester Balancer certainly takes out the vibration. It makes the motor smoother than most of the six and eight-cylinders on the road today."

Maurice Olley

Rolls-Royce, Production Manager

"From the demonstration there is no doubt that the elimination of the inherent harmonic vibration, by means of the rotating balancer, has been attained in practice to a degree which is very satisfactory to the passenger."

Willys-Knight scores again. To its famous sleeve-valve engine, that improves with use, it adds a perfection long sought by many motor cars—the elimination of vibration.

Company Puts on Drill During Day.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTSDALE, Sept. 13.—Scottsdale went over the top in getting her quota of 800 men for National Defense Day. Yesterday morning at 7 o'clock, the parade was held and the members of the Service Company, 110th Infantry, Captain Charles Cunningham, commanding, responded, with the other regiments. At 8 o'clock the men were assigned to their companies. The Service Company was taken to Loucks Park for drill.

At 11 o'clock the service men were allowed to go home or were given to refreshments on the park grounds. At 1 o'clock a tent was erected on the corner of Loucks Park and Red Cross women, Mrs. A. S. Livergood, Mrs. W. D. Storer, Mrs. Susan Whaley and Miss Helen and Virginia Whaley, began making coffee and preparing to take care of the soldiers as they would in war time. The women worked from 9 o'clock until 3:30, not being relieved during that time. They gave out the 50 dozen of doughnuts and coffee.

A having bout was held at Loucks Park between "Blush" Sabro of Mount Pleasant and "Duke" Ruby of Scottsdale. The boys were to go six rounds but Sabro had an injured arm and the bout was called off after five rounds. The high school football team went through some practice stunts.

A review was held of the men of the Service Company. The Scottsdale Military Band played in true military style and was complimented by Captain Charles Cunningham.

The parade formed at the park and moved out Chestnut street to Market, then Market to Broadway to Pittsburg to Spring and from Spring street back to the park where it ended. In the parade were 400 of the Service Company, the Military Band, the S. A. B. Band, members of the Civilian Committee for National Defense, the officers of Red Cross auxiliary, St. John's, Cadets and Boy Scouts.

The town was handsomely decorated with flags.

Watching Competition

Among the ten rules for success recently promulgated by a famous merchant is: "Know what your competitors are doing."

This rule may be most important, but it does not rank among the first ten of the Wright-Metzler Store.

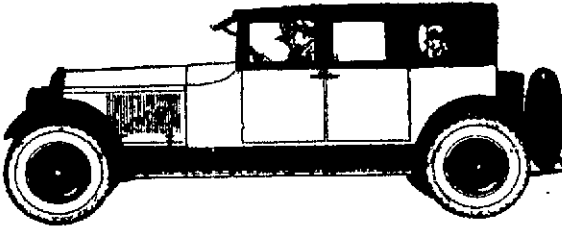

We hold to the belief that it is better to watch one's competitors less and one's self more.

That the great bulk of one's effort should be directed to creating—which leaves little time for copying.

We contend that some stores are too busy following the crowd ever to get the crowd following them.
